All human beings seek a joyful life, one in which they feel connected to oneself, to others, to their purpose for being, and to the world around them. All human beings also intuitively know that life is not always easy, but they sometimes doubt their ability to overcome their difficulties and emerge in a stronger and more peaceful place. The Role of Emotional Intelligence in Leadership

Lack of Emotional Intelligence in the workplace comes at a sky-high cost. Employees leave because they don't feel understood, seen, relevant, or safe. The cost of replacing an individual employee ranges from one-half to two times the employee's annual salary. Lack of EI shows up in many ways within the organization: time wasted in unnecessary conflict, unrealized employee and team potential, lost customers, costs associated with stress-related absenteeism.

IT'S TIME FOR YOU TO DISCOVER:

- How EQ influences the way you respond to others and yourself
- How to grow your skills of Emotional Intelligence so you can tune into the challenges your people are facing before it causes them to leave
- What empathy is and how to build it to empower employees and keep them performing at a high level

“ Marissa brought so much energy and empathy to her presentation that people were engaged and involved in the discussion. In addition, I received unsolicited emails from several people who had joined the presentation over the conference bridge, thanking me for bringing Marissa to speak to the group. That never happens. I would highly recommend Marissa for her intelligence, enthusiasm, confidence and ability to engage people at all levels. ”

~ Wendy Green, Host of Hey, Boomer Live

Marissa is the ideal keynote speaker for any organization that wants to create a highly valuable and memorable experience for their guests.”
